

Press Release - Ian F Gibb Photography

Ian F Gibb has been awarded the prestigious Licentiateship Distinction from the Royal Photographic Society.

The Royal Photographic Society, founded in 1853, is the most prestigious international photographic society. It has long been recognized for the promotion & maintenance of high photographic standards around the world and has established itself worldwide through its programme of touring exhibitions, events & special interest groups.

In order to gain a distinction, Ian F Gibb has submitted a portfolio for approval by a highly qualified Panel of Fellows of the Society.

Ian has been successful in satisfying the assessors and has received a certificate from the President of the Society enabling him to use the letters LRPS after his name.

"I am delighted and proud to have received this recognition from what I consider to be the pre-eminent Photographic Society worldwide - To have achieved this award is a long sought after goal and a significant step towards Fellowship of The Society"

See more of Ian's photography at www.ianfgibbphotography.com

Photographers interested in joining The Royal Photographic Society and emulating the success of Ian F Gibb should visit www.rps.org

The Royal Photographic Society

Patron: Her Majesty The Queen. Incorporated by Royal Charter